

Cove • 129 Harrington Street

Designed by renowned architect Harry Seidler and completed by Grocon International in 2004 Cove apartments offer a contemporary design and architectural masterpiece, combined with a fantastic location. The heritage listed five-level St Patrick's Hall to Harrington Street was refurbished and integrated with a four-level commercial building to Gloucester Street.

The podium was designed to raise apartments above the sunblocked lower storeys. Unique construction and support techniques were used to preserve the heritage listed church hall and archaeological remnants found during construction. The podium area accommodates 5 star facilities and further allows for a dramatic lobby entrance.

There are 213 apartments in total with a number of different configurations; from two three-storey high penthouses with open internal spaces and private pools on the roof, to half-floor, four and five units per level.
