Making Sense - October 2020

By Ron Bauer

Sales:

Probably the most asked question to an agent is “How’s the market?” It’s so open-ended and what does it really mean? Is it good for buying? Is it good for selling? Of course agents will often answer with how good it is for them which is probably the last thing anyone wants to hear! There’s also the perception that ‘booming’ = good. When the media says the market is booming, people seem to think that’s a positive thing. Whereas really, that’s only true for very few people – maybe downsizers or people selling in the Eastern Suburbs and moving to...Uppercumbucka-West! I would suggest that the answer right now though is – the market is good. It’s good because despite all that has been going on, there is a level of confidence in the market. Sellers are confident to sell. Buyers are confident to buy. So, there is a reasonably healthy selection of properties to choose from and a reasonable number of buyers to buy them. Like most things, the answer to what is a good market – is balance.

Property Management:

Speaking of balance, the situation now is that we have struck one, but it feels tenuous. The increasing number of vacancies has been stemmed; we have managed to keep things level for several weeks now. The unfortunate factor is that we are mid-Spring and without the usual influx of overseas students/working travellers etc, we are not able to make any inroads and bring that number down. Traditionally as well, the New Year break only adds to the burden. I can’t say this strongly enough, please talk to our experienced team on the best ways to navigate this challenging time. Dropping rent is one option, renovating is another, but we have other levers to pull on as well. We are here to help. And we look forward to discussing what this market may mean for you anytime.

Yours faithfully,
